

Florida Foundation Seed Producers, Inc. seeks a commercial partner for EXCLUSIVE LICENSE of

A New Variety of Annual Ryegrass

FLORIDA FOUNDATION SEED PRODUCERS, INC.

OPPORTUNITY FOR AN EXCLUSIVE LICENSE

A new annual ryegrass cultivar with excellent disease resistance and cold tolerance has been developed jointly by Dr. Gordon Prine of the University of Florida, breeder of several outstanding ryegrass cultivars such as Jumbo, Big Daddy, and Prine and by Dr. David Baltensperger of Nebraska Panhandle Station at Scottsbluff, NE. It is expected to be widely adapted in the Southeastern annual ryegrass region, especially the northern portion, and perhaps even further northward. It is also expected to have considerable adaptation internationally.

This new cultivar is derived from seed of surviving plants from eight diploid annual ryegrass cultivars that survived in a cold tolerance study during the harsh winter of 2000-2001 near Scottsbluff, NE where less than 10% of plants of most entries had survived. In Nebraska, plants were selected for surviving the cold winter. In Florida, plants were selected for good yield and disease resistance. Through multiple breeding cycles, plants were developed with good growth, cold tolerance, and disease resistance.

A composite of seed, amounting to about 2 pounds, is being offered as an Invitation to Negotiate from Florida Foundation Seed Producers, Inc. There is a need for the various genotypes to stabilize further by growing the combined seed from both locations in a neutral site such as Oregon before becoming the final population for distributing to forage growers. Therefore, a prebreeding and breeders seed planting is needed in Oregon where plants are spaced planted or very thinly seeded so individual plants can be rogued (if susceptible to stem rust or other disease and/or poor growth and/or seed production). The breeders seed would be used to plant Foundation Seed for beginning of commercial seed sales. It is planned that one of the breeders will be able to visit Oregon and offer suggestions to the seed company for rouging the prebreeders and breeders seed plantings.

For more information about the cultivar, including trial data, please contact Dr. Gordon Prine at (352) 392-1811 x216 or gmprine1@ufl.edu. For more information about licensing, please contact Berry Treat, Germplasm Property Manager, at btreat@ffsp.net.
