ITN Description and Specifications

- ITN Title: 'Florida Brilliance' Strawberry Cultivar
- ITN No.: ITN17-03
- ITN Territory: As Proposed by ITN Respondents
- ITN Announcement Date: November 10, 2017
- ITN Proposal Due Date: Friday, December 15, 2017, 12PM EST
- Cultivar Description: 'Florida Brilliance' (U.S. PPAF)

'Florida Brilliance' is a new release from the University of Florida's strawberry breeding program located at the UF/IFAS Gulf Coast Research & Education Center. 'Florida Brilliance' demonstrates high early-season yields while maintaining excellent fruit quality.

During the 2016-2017 season, nearly 90% of the acreage in west-central Florida was planted in the two varieties 'Florida Radiance' and Sweet Sensation® brand 'Florida127'. While both

'Florida Radiance' and 'Florida127' have higher yields in late-November and early-December than previous varieties, there is a need for further increases in early yield, when market prices tend to be highest.

Plants of 'Florida Brilliance' are moderately compact with open architecture, which allows air movement and easy visualization of the fruit. Plants of 'Florida Brilliance' have long pedicels which allows the fruit to be easily harvested. In replicated field trials in west-central Florida during the 2015-2016 and 2016-2017 seasons, early and total yields of 'Florida Brilliance' were greater than both 'Florida Radiance' and 'Florida127'. 'Florida Brilliance' produced marketable yields of 70.0, 132.1, and 638.6 (November, December, and Total, respectively) grams/plant during the 2015-2016 season, and marketable yields of 30.3, 125.3, and 1014.4 (November, December, and Total) grams/plant during the 2016-2017 season. 'Florida127' produced marketable yields of 39.6, 75.3, and 411.9 grams/plant during the 2015-2016 season, and marketable yields of 14.1, 115.2, and 967.0 grams/plant during the 2016-2017 season.

Fruit of 'Florida Brilliance' are medium-large sized, with marketable fruit averaging roughly 20-21 g/fruit (average fruit weight is larger than 'Florida Radiance' but smaller than 'Florida 127'). Fruit of 'Florida Brilliance' are broad-conic in shape and are juicy and moderately firm. Fruit of 'Florida Brilliance' display excellent, uniform shape throughout the season and do not produce elongated fruit early in the season. Fruit of 'Florida Brilliance' are medium-red externally, and the achenes are notably sunken, giving the fruit a highly glossy appearance. Fruit of 'Florida Brilliance' had lower post-harvest weight loss when compared to 'Florida Radiance' and 'Florida127' when cold stored for 9 days.

Fruit of 'Florida Brilliance' display excellent quality and flavor. In flavor evaluations conducted by a trained sensory panel (USDA/ARS Hort. Science Research Laboratory, Ft. Pierce, FL) at five different points throughout two seasons, fruit of 'Florida Brilliance' consistently scored higher than 'Florida Radiance' and 'Florida127' in firmness ratings. In the same panel, ratings for sweetness and "strawberry flavor intensity" were not different than 'Florida Radiance' and were often lower than 'Florida127'. In general, the soluble solids content (SSC), titratable acidity (TA), and SSC/TA ratio of fruit of 'Florida Brilliance' is very similar to that of fruit of 'Florida Radiance'.

The disease resistance profile of 'Florida Brilliance' is somewhat similar to that of 'Florida Radiance', with a few exceptions. Plants of 'Florida Brilliance' appear to be slightly more resistant to acutatum fruit rot than plants of 'Florida Radiance'. Mortality of plants of 'Florida Brilliance' due to phytophthora root rot and charcoal rot was lower than plants of 'Florida Radiance'.

The data for this description was produced and compiled by researchers at the University of Florida's Gulf Coast Research and Education Center, University of South Florida, and the USDA/ARS. For more information on this cultivar, please contact Dr. Vance M. Whitaker.

What is an ITN?

Newly developed cultivars, experimental lines, and plant germplasm are routinely approved for release through UF's Florida Agricultural Experiment Station (FAES). Florida Foundation Seed Producers, Inc. (FFSP), a non-profit corporation and direct support organization of the University of Florida, is continuously seeking strategic production and marketing companies in commercialization of a diverse portfolio of newly developed plant cultivars. For certain crops, several companies may express interest in an opportunity for an exclusive license for an improved plant cultivar. The Invitation to Negotiate (ITN), implemented in 2006, is a process which enables FFSP to fairly and objectively evaluate all commercial proposals and comments to effectively identify superior companies to deliver new cultivars to the public. In return, licensed companies provide royalties back to FFSP for reinvestment in the breeding and development of new, improved cultivars at the FAES.

The ITN process encourages an open engagement of all interested companies and stakeholders. Companies submitting proposals and/or comments to an ITN will be evaluated consistently and fairly by a review committee comprised of staff members of FFSP and expert faculty advisors from FAES.

FFSP strives to secure the partner/partners that best meet the needs of the State of Florida and its people, UF, and the FAES breeding program. Responders to the ITN will be evaluated using a consistent methodology, allowing review committee members to weigh core elements and objectively evaluate multiple proposals. The ITN specifications objectively guide critical responses in a proposal and are designed to explore the project's commercial scope for a sustainable business, consistent with the necessity to deliver FAES plant breeding products and technology to the public. The ITN requires interested companies to describe their prior experience and current business model. Companies are asked to describe a plan of action concerning the new business opportunity. The ITN also requests details of marketing and production plans which will successfully deliver a sound commercial operation and ensure that sustaining royalties are returned to support the FAES breeding program. Initiation of an ITN and the participation by a company in an ITN process does not mean an exclusive agreement will be eventually awarded; only that responsive companies will receive consideration and a fair evaluation of proposals and comments submitted.

At the conclusion of the ITN process, it is everyone's hope that most details can be mutually agreed upon, resulting in an award of a license to a qualified and successful partner.

Please refer to the General Conditions of this ITN for specific specifications and instructions.
